LOSSES.

The number of books lost annually has been small. Sometimes, volumes charged to members of the legislature or officers of the government are not soon returned, and a few are never recovered. The loss in such cases is through the neglect and forgetfulness of the persons permitted to remove the books, rather than through any remissness of those having charge of the library. In some cases, there is apparently an indifference to the obligation to care for State property and to restore promptly books drawn out, and all suitable efforts to secure their return are unavailing. Losses from this cause are happily unimportant, and generally can be easily repaired. The alcoves are so protected, that few books have been lost by access of visitors and book thieves during the recess of the legislature. Yet a larger number was clandestinely taken during the last session than in any or all previous years. They were stolen, as there is sufficient reason to believe, by one person, a stranger visiting the library at different times professedly for consultation, and having perhaps a single accomplice. Embracing his opportunity, books were concealed under his garments, when he withdrew quietly to renew his operations on a following day. The number of books taken was twenty-five. They were rather attractive in binding but not rare or of much cost. Most or all of them were offered for sale at one of our second-hand book-stores, at such low prices as to awaken a suspicion that they had been dishonestly obtained. This suspicion led to inquiry and to a discovery of the depredations while in progress; but indiscreet and unfortunate proceedings defeated all attempts to arrest the criminal. Twelve, or about half of the books have been returned to the library; and it was found, on examination, that every volume had been mutilated by removing library marks and stamps and the title-pages and other leaves, so far as was supposed necessary to destroy all proof of ownership.

This loss, fortunately so unimportant, is the natural result of an undue exposure of the volumes, which, while it ministers to the convenience of some whom it is desirable to favor, is also dangerous to the library. From the beginning, an established rule has allowed members of the legislature an unrestricted access to every alcove, and the use of a key for the purpose. In using this privilege, the alcoves must often remain open not only to the privileged and trustworthy but to others, without its being possible to guard the alcoves sufficiently against the entrance of strangers who are thieves in a gentleman's garb. It is, however, a matter for congratulation that, by constant watchfulness and after a thorough annual inspection, nothing of much value is known to have been clandestinely taken from the library for more than twenty years, notwithstanding the dangers to which it has been exposed.

DONATIONS.

A list of donations received during the year is given in the foregoing pages. The donors were Hon. Henry Wilson, Hon. Robert C. Winthrop, Dr. Edward Jarvis, Dr. Samuel A. Greene,

B. G. Northrop, J. N. Genin, Theodore Lyman, Jr., C. A. Morse, J. N. Murphy, J. Smith Homans, J. J. Barclay, Hon. N. B. Shurtleff, C. B. Stuart, Edward McPherson (Clerk U. S. House Rep.), C. D. Bradlee, Charles Cowley, Consul-General of North German Union, Prof. Agassiz, Collins Stone, James Harris, Henry Lee, Jr., Dr. George B. Loring, J. T. Woodward, and Hon. Joel Parker.

AGENCY.

The foreign agency, through the firm of Stevens & Haynes, London, continues to be satisfactory. Through their kind consideration and suggestion, the library has procured during the year a valuable collection of pamphlets belonging to the late Lord Justice Rolt. There were in the series 573, including seven volumes handsomely bound in calf. They are mostly of a legal, judicial and political character, and many are timely and able discussions of subjects of public interest, and illustrative of the spirit and history of the times. The entire cost of the collection to the library was forty-five dollars.

A small additional appropriation is respectfully solicited, to enable the trustees to provide further conveniences, and for other purposes.

Respectfully submitted.

JOSEPH WHITE, Librarian.
